U. S. Court Unlikely to Force Early Action on Redistricting

Delay Asked In Hearings At Madison

Zimmerman Counsel Wants Legislature To Have Time to Act

MADISON (AP) — A Federal Court master, or fact finder, convened reapportionment hearings today and was immediately asked to delay proceedings until the Legislature has a chance to act.

Roger Minahan, representing the defendant Secretary of State Robert C. Zimmerman, told the Master, Emmert Wingert of Madison, that the Federal Court should "not march in on the Legislature" when lawmakers are performing their duties.

Wingert took the motion under advisement. Another motion to eliminate the Master from the case was denied by Wingert.

Reynold's Argument

Atty. Gen. John W. Reynolds, who initiated the suit to force redistricting of the state's political districts, said the Federal Court has the power to decree reapportionment.

"We do not claim the Federal Court can enforce anything but federal rights," Reynolds said, but added the Federal Court can decide present reapportionment violates the rights of Wisconsin citizens.

Minahan, a Milwaukee attorney appointed to represent Zimmerman, told Wingert that the present action is "extremely dangerous."

"While the courts have declared acts unconstitutional," Minahan said, "a court has never done anything so drastic as to say we are a super legislature and will make the law constitute itself." He referred to the possibility that the Federal Court might, at some point in the proceedings, draft new redistricting plans.

Senate, House Continue Fight On Money Bills

Neither Wants to Give Way in Efforts To Increase Prestige

WASHINGTON (AP) — A word-sworn battle between the Senate and House over how to share the paper hat of command over money bills continued to immobilize a petulant Congress today.

Despite its comic opera aspects, a pre-emptive clash which has prevented final passage of any regular department appropriation bill in six months took on a new note of seriousness after Monday's skirmish.

Compromise Rejected

The House Appropriations Committee rejected a proposed Senate compromise for a study of possible changes in procedures next year. It capped this by adopting 25 to 2 a resolution accusing the Senate of "consistently advocating large appropriations, increased spending and corresponding deficits."

This brought a roar of dissent in the Senate. Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., said the resolution was the most insulting document one House ever delivered to the other.

A dozen senators said they felt that the very foundations of the two-House form of Congress were being shaken. They vied with each other to back up Robertson in his denial that the Senate is a spendthrift.

Robertson said—and he was supported strongly by his colleagues—that the House was trying to get the upper hand over the Senate.

"This is not a question of prestige—it is a theory of government," he said.

S. Dakota GOP Chooses Bottum

PIERRE, S.D. (AP)—South Dakota Republican committeemen struggled through 20 ballots Monday night before settling on Lt. Gov. Joe Bottum as the party's replacement nominee for the U.S. Senate.

Bottum, 59, will succeed the late Sen. Francis Case on the November ballot.

Gov. Archie Gubbrud immediately appointed Bottum to fill out the remaining six months of Case's term. Case died in Washington several weeks ago after an easy victory in the primaries.

Saskatchewan Battleground

Compulsory Control of Medicine Major Target in Doctors' Strike

BY M. W. NEWMAN

CHICAGO Daily News Service

REGINA, Saskatchewan — This week's fight between doctors and government in Saskatchewan has become the major battleground of the continent for socialized medicine programs.

That explains the fury of the Saskatchewan doctors' strike against a new and compulsory socialized medicine program.

Oppose Situation

While the province is bound to accept the program, doctors are not. They are opposed to the program because it would give the government control over the medical profession.

They are also opposed to the program because it would give the government control over the medical profession.

Wants Scandinavian or Belgian Troops Plus Czechs and Polish Forces to Replace Western Allies

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev declared today that the war threat over Berlin has become "ever more ominous" and proposed that Western troops there be replaced with a garrison of Norwegian-Danish or Belgian-Dutch troops plus Czech and Polish forces.

The proposal was made after he had claimed much more powerful weapons than those of the United States, said the Soviet Union has developed an antimissile missile and declared Western "aggressors" would perish in a nuclear war.

Khrushchev denounced the current series of American nuclear tests as a "challenge to mankind" and said further improvement of weapons by the Communist countries was now an "unavoidable necessity."

Speaks to Peace Congress

He spoke on the second day of a World Peace Congress in the Kremlin. About 2,000 delegates from 118 countries are attending.

It was the first time the Russians have proposed posting forces of the smaller European Communist and Western powers in West Berlin in place of the American, British and French garrisons.

The new plan obviously was an effort to get the big powers out of the way in Berlin and leave the Communists a freer hand.

Proposing the substitution of troops, Khrushchev said: "If they don't agree to Norwegians and Danes, then let it be Belgians and Dutch."

Khrushchev said "the hotbed of war danger in the heart of Europe is becoming ever more ominous" in Berlin.

"Backbone of NATO"

West Germany and its armed forces, he charged, "are already becoming the backbone of the aggressive forces of NATO."

His statement on U.S. tests in the Pacific and the high-altitude hydrogen explosion Monday, was unexpectedly mild. Two speakers at the congress, a Chicago professor and a British Churchman, had charged the Soviet Union with part of the responsibility for resumption of tests by breaking a three-year moratorium.

Khrushchev said the major series of tests of the United States were "a challenge to mankind."

High-altitude tests, he said, were "disregarding the fact that these experiments may have very dangerous consequences for the conditions of man's life."

The world was in the shadow of a nuclear catastrophe, Khrushchev said.

U. S. Planning 2 More Blasts In Atmosphere

Decision Depends On Data Obtained From First Shot

HONOLULU (AP)—The United States probably will set off two more high altitude nuclear explosions at Johnston Island—Sunday they won't pack the punch of Sunday night's hydrogen superblast.

"There's a good possibility there will be two more detonations at the Johnston site before the nuclear test program ends, an Atomic Energy Commission official said. "It all depends on what scientists learn from the first successful explosion."

Phase Nears End

The official hinted the original plan of three or four high altitude shots still was in effect. He suggested that one of these would be the final test of the spring and summer series.

He indicated the Christmas Island phase was almost at an end, despite a Joint Task Force 8 directive closing that test zone to ships and planes Monday night. It was understood one of the last shots in the Christmas region was being readied for firing.

Twenty-four nuclear devices have been detonated at Christmas since the test program started April 25. Most of these blasts were at low altitudes.

Test Available To All Networks This Evening

NEW YORK (AP) — People around the nation may get to see the first television transmission from the Telstar satellite tonight at the same time as the communications experts making the initial test.

The test, expected around 6:30 p.m. (EST), will be available simultaneously to the three television networks from American Telephone and Telegraph Co. receiving equipment at Andover, Maine.

Whether they carry the transmission at the time it is received from the satellite, or tape record it for later showing, is up to them—assuming the tryout is successful.

The Columbia Broadcasting System said it expected to air the test "live," that is, at the time it is made. CBS has a news program from 6:15 to 6:30 p.m. which could be interrupted, as could a following half-hour show devoted to the Telstar project.

American Broadcasting Co. said that from 7:30 p.m. to 7:45 p.m. it would carry a show relayed from the satellite.

The test pictures will be transmitted to the satellite from Andover, and the satellite will send them back to Andover.

Milwaukeean Wants Court Okay to Run As 'Demo-Publican'

MADISON (AP) — A former Democratic state senator from Milwaukee turned to the courts today to try and force Secretary of State Robert C. Zimmerman to permit him to run in the 4th Congressional District primary as a "Demo-publican."

Roman R. Blenski obtained an alternative writ of mandamus ordering Zimmerman to appear in Dane County Circuit Court in mid-afternoon to answer demands that he accept Blenski's nomination papers to run in both the Democratic and Republican columns.

Zimmerman refused to accept the papers last week, citing a state law which says no filing officer shall accept nomination papers for any candidate to run in more than one party primary at the same time.

Phone and Radio Relay Setup Goal

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A "switchboard" satellite rocketed into orbit today as a possible first step toward a space relay system for swift, worldwide transmission of radio, telephone and television signals.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced at 6:35 a.m. EST that the complex Telstar satellite was in orbit. It thundered away from Cape Canaveral at 3:35 a.m. atop a towering three-stage Thor-Delta rocket.

Relay Point Probable

Officials scheduled the first communications experiments with the satellite tonight and if all goes well, American television viewers this evening will see the first live TV pictures beamed by satellite.

Within two weeks, Telstar may serve as a relay point for the first live transatlantic television show and a number of telephone and radio experiments between the United States and western Europe.

The Thor-Delta, logging its 10th straight satellite-launching success, blasted off exactly on schedule.

The exact orbital path was not immediately known but NASA officials said preliminary indications are that it would be close to the course that was sought — 375 to 3,450 miles above the earth. Officials said the orbiting time around the earth was two hours and 36 minutes.

Wait Until Tonight

Scientists now must wait out the long hours until tonight before they can get an idea how successful the Telstar might be. The satellite is to be in position about 6 p.m. EST, for the first test to determine how effectively the vehicle can serve as a communications transfer point.

If the initial trials are successful, the three major U.S. television networks plan to pipe the program into American homes tonight.

Officials of AT&T said they hoped to conduct their first test transmissions to the satellite on the fifth orbit, about 12 hours after launch.

Iola Continues Efforts to Hire Village Doctor

Will Consider Construction Of Building for Physician

BY EVELYN STOLTENBERG

IOLA — Efforts are being continued to secure a doctor for Iola. The village and community was left without a doctor by the deaths of its two doctors within three days about three months ago. Ads have been placed and continue to run in the weekly publications of state and national medical organizations. In addition several leads obtained by personal contacts with persons of various places have been followed. The community was served twice temporarily for two or three week periods by resident doctors from the University Hospital at Madison. They spoke favorably of the location but, being specialists, did not feel they were right for the position. A general practitioner is needed for small town or rural communities, they said.

Committee Problems

The committee reported numerous other communities in Wisconsin as well as other states also are seeking physicians. While many doctors and their wives speak of being interested in small communities, they refer to cities of 5,000 or more rather than villages.

Among assets the town may offer, the committee says, are a hospital and a stable economy not affected by seasonal changes in industry or labor problems resulting in strikes. Incomes may not be at a high average but neither is there a large relief load. Though the village is small, it is situated on two state highways 15 minutes from Waupaca, 30 minutes from Stevens Point and one hour from Appleton. It is a well populated rural area. The committee also said while office space used by previous doctors is available, it would consider building or remodeling or whatever might be needed by a doctor here. No prospective doctor would be turned away because of race or creed, the committee said. Every effort is being made to secure one that will be well received by the community and be happy here.

Interest Wanes In 'Red Card' At Waupaca

Register of Deeds Says Only 74 Were Issued This Year

WAUPACA—Interest in the "red card" identification plan for teenagers who are 17 years old apparently is waning, according to Lester Breier, register of deeds.

Only 74 teen-agers applied for the red identification cards so far this year. There were 159 red cards issued in 1961.

Breier said perhaps the 17-year-olds are using other means of establishing their ages.

Set by Sheriff

The red card system was established in the county last year when Sheriff Ray Abrahamson announced his department was going to enforce a state law preventing anyone under 17 at a public dance without a parent or guardian.

The first red card identification this year was issued March 12. As of July 6, only 74 cards were issued from the register of deeds office.

New Type

Breier also announced he is using a new type of identification card for 18-year-olds. The new card differs from the former "I.D." card in that the photograph now is to be pasted on the back of the card instead of on the front.

The description of the bearer of the card also is on the back of the card. On the old cards, the state statute was printed on the back.

Over 2,500 Visit Winnebagoland Art Fair Sunday

More than 2,500 persons Sunday visited the fifth annual Winnebagoland Art Fair at the Oshkosh Public Museum.

Seventy-five artists from 15 counties in the Fox River Valley exhibited paintings, which were hung on snow fences on the grounds, craft articles and sculpture.

To create the fair atmosphere, colored banners were strung from the trees, classical music was piped through the public address system, an ice cream social was held under a canopy, a horse-drawn carriage wandered along the driveway and artists demonstrated their skills.

Co-chairmen of the art fair were Mrs. Betty Howard and Bernard Peterson, assisted by Oshkosh members of the Fox Valley Artists Association.

New 16-Foot Craft Replaces 11-Year Veteran on Lakes

WAUPACA—A new police boat for Arthur Krueger, Chas. O'Lakes patrolman, was launched during the weekend.

The boat is owned by the towns of Farmington and Dayton and replaces the one that has been in service for 11 years.

The new unit is a 16-foot ski-boat with a high-powered motor. It is equipped with a two-way radio on the sheriff's band, red light and siren, spot light, fire extinguisher, dragging equipment and life preservers.

Krueger is in his 15th year as Chas. O'Lakes patrolman. In addition to enforcing the speed and safety laws, he does rescue work.

Insurance Available To Eligible Veterans

The Veterans Administration has reminded veterans who were released from active service on or after April 25, 1951, and who have a service-connected disability, that they may be eligible for non-participating GI life insurance.

Application generally must be made within one year from the date the VA finds the veteran's disability is service-connected. To qualify for the insurance, the veteran must be in good health except for his service-connected disability.

Political Control Big Doctors' Major Target

concessions, they want the Medical Care plan scrapped.

Let's take a brief look at the law and some of its implications. It goes far beyond the kind of limited medical insurance proposed by the Kennedy administration.

Q Who runs the Saskatchewan Medical Care program?

A A commission appointed by the left-center provincial government. The doctors contend it's a political commission.

Q Who is eligible for medical coverage?

A Everybody living in the province. It's compulsory.

Q What are the benefits of the plan?

A It will pay 85 per cent of the diagnosis, treatment and cost doctors' standard fee schedules. The doctors protest that this for virtually all kinds of costs still gives the state snooping except drugs and dental care. In rights and ultimate control over addition, the state provides free the payments. Besides, they say, treatment for cancer, polio, tuberculosis and mental illness.

Restriction Eased

Q What will it cost and how is it financed?

A Its cost will be $21,000,000 a year paid mostly out of an increase in sales and income taxes. The cost in added taxes and premiums for a family earning around $5,000 a year is $125, according to government officials.

Q Does a doctor have to practice under the plan?

A The law provides for this but the doctors raised such a fuss that Premier Lloyd, by special decree, lifted this restriction. He now says that they don't have to if they don't want to.

Q But won't the state still be paying the doctors' bills?

A It would seem so. The doctors originally complained that the law required them to bill the state for all payments and that this represented state control of medicine.

Could Change Rule

Shortly before the strike took effect, the government backed off and stated that this would not be necessary—that patients could pay the doctors directly and then bill the medical commission, submitting only the doctor's name.

The doctors protest that this gives the state snooping except drugs and dental care. In rights and ultimate control over addition, the state provides free the payments. Besides, they say, treatment for cancer, polio, tuberculosis and mental illness.

They object that these concessions are not embodied in the actual law.

Q What do the doctors want?

A They insist they are not open to medical insurance, but only to government control.

They argue that a much better way to subsidize and improve Saskatchewan's existing private health care programs.

Saskatchewan's doctors are in the financial elite of prairie land. They are said to average $18,000 a year each—and do not contend they would lose money under the new plan. Even though the government pays only 85 per cent of their fee schedules that is all they usually collect, anyway, because of bad debts.

Some cynics say the doctors despise the new law because it would put all their transactions on record for scrutiny of the income tax collector. The doctors angrily deny this.

Actually, many of them have accepted government checks all along for treating cancer and mental cases.

This prairie welfare state is proud of its advanced health care programs. All of the province's 925,000 persons are covered by a prepaid hospitalization plan that picks up their bills.

The premium cost to each family is under $50 a year, and taxes make up the rest.

The hospitalization plan was instituted in 1946, and was a "first" for Canada. Now all of Canada's 10 provinces offer some similar kind of program.

"Yes, but the Lloyd government now has complete control of our hospitals in Saskatchewan," a Regina physician asserted.

Even without the new plan, go-declared, were nonsense, and were being made only "to put heart into their own armed forces and those of their allies."

Although the "United States" ing to a doctor here is inexpensive by U.S. standards. And the quality of the treatment has been considered first rate.

A repeat office visit usually runs around $3 in the capital city of Regina. Babies are delivered for about $100.

Private medical care programs already covered about 65 per cent of the people in Saskatchewan. Government officials, arguing for universal medical care point out they don't cover everyone and have serious limitations and cut-off points.

The war of nerves goes on with opponents of the government seeking a court injunction to suspend the law.

The battle is really for public opinion. Many of the arguments sound familiar to any American who has followed the home-front medical care fight.

Saskatchewan's mess holds portents for all Americans.

ranks first for its scale of war preparation," he said, there was no reason to think "the balance of strength has changed in their favor."

Warns "Aggressors"

"If the aggressors start a nuclear war," he went on, "they will inevitably perish themselves in its flames."

His claim that the Soviet Union had developed an antimissile missile were in these words:

"With due account of the fact that the Soviet Union was forced to develop in the last few years nuclear weapons of 50, 100 and more megatons. Intercontinental rockets, the global rocket which is practically impervious to defense and an antimissile rocket," he said, "it will be seen that the ruling groups of the United States have no reason at all to say that the balance of strength has changed in their favor."

Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky asserted last November that the Soviet Union had the means of intercepting enemy rockets. But he did not say whether this meant an antimissile missile had been developed.

Khrushchev called "monstrous" the idea advanced by U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara on June 16 that an understanding might be reached to limit nuclear weapons to use against troops and thus spare cities.

"We believe that what we must agree on is not the rules of nuclear war, but how to eliminate the very possibility of its breaking out, so that towns, big and small, remain intact, and that all townships, villages and farming communities remain intact as well," said Khrushchev.

The world situation, he went on, requires "immediate action by all peoples, otherwise there will be a catastrophe."

In the present balance of forces and new weapons, he declared, all of 12½ minutes the American Strategic Air Command was virtually in a state of war with the Soviet Union," last November.

He referred to an error in communications which led to an alert of the Strategic Air Command. The error was quickly checked, citing dangers of a mistake and corrected.

TV May Use Telstar in Test Tonight at that time, full-scale transmissions will take place during the sixth orbit, about 15 hours after launch.

Use Seen in Europe

The satellite is expected to be within range of the two ground stations on its sixth orbit and the next three succeeding ones for from 20 to 50 minutes each time.

Grand stations in Europe — the British station at Goonhilly Down near Falmouth, England, and the French station at Plomour-Bodou in Brittany—may attempt to receive the transmissions during some of the orbits tonight. Later, they also will use the satellite for transmission purposes.

From its vantage point high above the earth, the complex space switchboard could serve as a relay point for 600 telephone channels or a single television channel. Within a week or so, it could make possible the first intercontinental television programs between the United States and Western Europe.

Private Venture

Telstar marks the first venture by private business into the space field. Bell Telephone Laboratories of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. developed the satellite and is paying the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $3 million to launch and track its orbit.

Fourteen hours after launching, if all goes well, Telstar will be in position for ground stations to start a series of television, phone, voice, radio and high-speed data transmission tests.

The initial experiments will be beamed to the satellite from Andover, Maine, where a huge horn antenna sweeps the sky to pluck leading to a chain-like reaction of experimental communications satellites planned by the United States to determine which is the best for a global communications network.

Businessmen to Finance New Arena in Madison Court Unlikely To Force Speed On Districting

MADISON (AP)—A group of Madison businessmen announced Monday for financing a multi-purpose 5,000 seat arena on the city's East Side. Cost of the 130 x 216 foot structure was not disclosed. Parking space for 5,000 cars is planned.

John J. Walsh, secretary for the organization, said construction is planned in the spring. He said the building would accommodate ice shows, conventions, indoor exercises, athletic and other events.

signals from the high-flying package.

Careful Study Needed

Telstar will receive the signals on one frequency, amplify them 10 billion times, and transmit them back to Andover and a station at Holmdel, N.J.

No attempt will be made at full-scale transatlantic television until scientists on the ground have had at least a week to make certain the thousands of parts in the 170-pound sphere are functioning.

Then it is planned to beam a 12-minute program of on-the-spot news highlights from a dozen U.S. cities via cable to Andover, up to the satellite and down to stations in England and France for relay to 16 European nations. A similar European program will be transmitted to United States viewers a day or two later.

Because of the extraordinary microwave band-width requirements of television, all 600 of Telstar's channels are needed for one-way television broadcast.

Transatlantic television now is impossible because there are only a total of 550 channels between North America and overseas points.

Telstar is one of several types of experimental communications satellites planned by the United States to determine which is the best for a global communications network.

judiciary is deduced from the methodical approach to his work indicated by E. L. Wingert of Madison, the court's choice as "master", or referee, on the re-apportionment question.

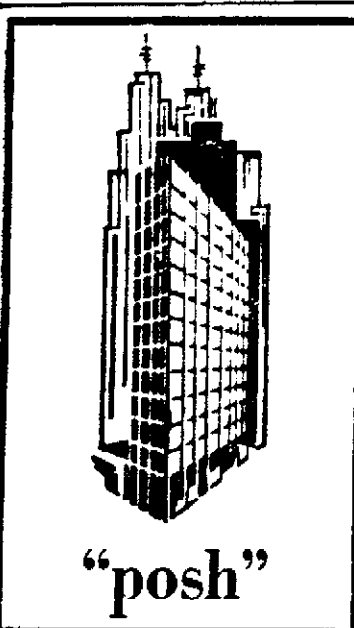

Wingert has indicated that he will require a good deal of time to make his recommendations to the court on the legality and adequacy of the present legislative districting arrangements.

But time is fast running out with respect to redistricting for the fall elections.

No Indefinite Delay

Today is the filing deadline for all candidates in the primary election. While it would be a comparatively simple thing for the legislature to enact a special act deferring the filing deadline for a couple of weeks, it could not set a date later than about August 1 without forcing a postponement of the fall election calendar also. Such radical action is thought highly improbable. Election clerks need some weeks to prepare, print and distribute the ballots and other supplies and to handle legal announcements of the elections.

If the legislature's present inclination to avoid further legislation, and its hunch that the courts won't act in time to affect this year's election are upheld, the redistricting issue will be deferred to the 1963 legislative session next January and any reapportionment of the senate and assembly would not be effective until the elections of 1964.

THOUGHTFUL HOSTESS

We recently had such a thoughtful gesture from a host and hostess that I'd like to pass it on. While we were vacationing in the western United States, we spent a few days with old friends who live in a magnificent resort area. There was nothing wanting in the way of needs and luxuries in the guest room. They thought of everything including about 20 picture post cards showing scenes of that breath-taking country. The cards were even gift-wrapped! Attached to the ribbon was a card marked for us and stating, "Thought you'd like to use these for your friends back home." Needless to say, every card was dispatched and there was no necessity of driving six miles to the nearest store to get any.

GREETING IN RESTAURANT

If a contemporary of my mother or grandmother comes to my table in a restaurant for a brief greeting, am I obliged to rise?

Louise Davis Answers:

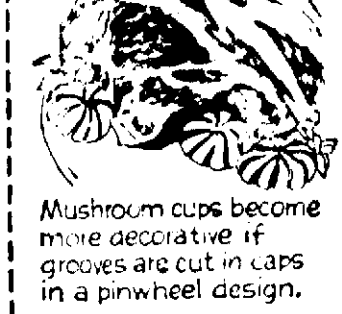

No, but your training or instinct may get you to your feet. No harm done, of course for you'd be inherently respectful.

Louise Davis Answers:

Freeze Foods

In Canning Jars

Glass canning jars are fine for freezing fruits and vegetables if you put foods in dry. Just cut the fruit into pieces and pack it dry into the jars. Or roll the berries in the amount of sugar needed and pack and seal it. Just don't pour a sugar syrup over fruit when using canning jars. Any vegetable will pack in fine after blanching and draining.

Homemade Sauce

Make your own Tartar Sauce to serve with scallops or other fish. Just mix minced green olives, onions, celery, parsley and pickle to mayonnaise. Use proportions that suit your taste!

Italian Wines, Cheeses Spark Summer Eating

If you venture beyond the pizza Bel Paese, a rich, bland cheese and spaghetti circuit, you'll discover a whole new world of Italian gourmet delicacies. Among these are summertime treats like the marvelous go-together, light Italian wines and cheeses. A whole group of fine Italian wines make gay, lighthearted companions for Italian cheeses that are pleasingly mild and delicate.

These refreshing wines and cheeses go together quite happily on porch and patio, at picnics and parties. They stir up a delicious breeze at a back yard barbecue. They are very much at home at the cocktail party for those who prefer lighter libation—and, are sure to delight all cheese-lovers present.

Simplicity is Keynote

Simplicity is the keynote of their preparation, a great boon to summertime chefs. Pop a cork, round up breads and crackers and you're all set with an elegant, refreshing snack, or party fare for any number of occasions.

A cheese that's not too rich, and therefore invites more tasting, is Fontina, a mellow, semi-sift cheese that is particularly good with pumpernickel. An ideal wine companion would be "Soave," a friendly, light and golden wine.

If you like your cheese on the tender, melting side, easy to spread (especially on bread), try stracchino. This is a "runny" cheese which is quite rich without being sharp. You might like to serve "Luzana" (a wine from the Lake Garda region) which is very dry, very vivacious. Familiar to almost everyone is

Cutting Sun Glare From Windows

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: My problem is glare in the afternoon through my kitchen window when I am cooking. It most blinds me. How could I cut this glare?

A: To cut the afternoon glare, you might try one of the following methods: Apply a thin coat of fresh orange shellac to the clean window glass surface. Fibreglass curtains over the window, or a sheet of thin, colored plastic, made into a window shade or "screen"—preferably the fiber-glass, however, because it is fire-proof. A Venetian blind to cover the window. An awning or canopy over the outside of the window.

Q: Can anything be sprayed on old fence posts to kill termites? What can be done other than removing the post? Have to do it myself so make it an easy job.

A: No treatment can be given to the surface of any infested wood which will have an effect on termites within the wood. Best to remove and burn the posts and get you send 15 cents (no stamps) to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C. for a copy of leaflets No. AL 9 1993, "Decay and Termite Damage in Houses," outlining various methods of treatment.

Q: We installed some prefinished wood (cherry) paneling last fall and hung some pictures on it. Now the wood finish is lighter in color behind the pictures. They say wood mellow with age, but is it also true about prefinished wood paneling? Can we make the rest of the surface lighter like under the pictures? Can this paneling be cleaned? If so, how?

A: Prefinished wood paneling, since it is of wood, also mellow with age. The paneling can be easily cleaned with a cream, clean-up wax, made by a national manufacturer and widely available at supermarkets, hardware and housewares dealers. When the surface is cleaned all over, you will probably find it considerably lightened in color.

Q: We would like to put asphalt tile on our basement floor. It is now painted with a rubber base paint. Must this be removed first before tiling?

A: If the rubber base paint is in good condition and adhering tightly all over, asphalt tile can be put down without removing the paint, if the following test is satisfactory: test the paint surface with a 10 per cent solution of lye; if the paint remains unaffected, the tile can safely be put down over it. This applies only to a rub-

Keep Shoe Soles Dry With Clogs Made Out of Wood

BY CAPPY DICK and there tie the ends. This strip keep the soles of your shoes dry to your shoe when you wade through puddles. With both clogs tied in place, you of water left by a downpour and find that you can walk through rain. You strap the clogs to your shoes without getting feet as the boy has done in the picture. To make a pair you will need four small wood blocks and two strips of wood cut from an orange or apple crate. Split each strip to make it the width of your shoe at the widest point of the sole. The pieces should be just as long as your shoes from heel to toe. There is no need to shape the strips like the soles of your shoes. Simply let them be rectangles like that in figure 1.

To the bottom of each strip attach two blocks of wood, placing one at the middle of the heel and the other at the middle of the ball of your foot. Spread glue on each block, fit it into place, then fasten it with two nails driven in as in figure 2.

After preparing each clog in this manner, attach a strip of stout cloth, such as canvas, to be used in tying the clogs to your feet. Figure 3 shows how this cloth is attached and tied. Tack the center of the strip beneath the back end of the clog. Place your foot on the clog, bring the ends of the strip up and across your instep, down beneath the clog, up over your toes

Follow the Best Route

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
A friend of mine was once asked what route he had taken in driving from New York to Los Angeles. "I went by way of the George Washington Bridge," he replied. As usual, this reminds me of a bridge hand.
South won the first trick with the ace of spades and tacked the clubs immediately. When the clubs failed to break, South tried to fall back on the diamonds. The jack of diamonds dropped, but South couldn't get to his hand for the fourth diamond trick.
South was down one, all because he had started off on the highway before he had gotten himself out of town.
South has eight tricks in top cards and needs one other trick to make the contract. If the clubs break normally, declarer will have tricks to burn. A careful declarer should give some thought to the possibility that the clubs will break badly.
South can make an extra diamond trick if the suit breaks 3-3 or if the jack of diamonds falls — provided that South can still get back to his own hand. The only side entry to the diamonds is the ace of clubs. Therefore South must test the diamonds before he starts the clubs.

Naturally, South should examine the clubs once more. Will the clubs be damaged if South tries the diamonds first? Not at all. If the clubs are going to break at the second trick, they will break just as well a few tricks later.
After winning the first trick with the ace of spades, South leads a diamond to the ace and then a low diamond to the king. When the jack falls, South leads a diamond to dummy's ten and then gets back to his hand with the ace of clubs to cash the queen of diamonds. The rest is just a matter of cashing top cards.

Fall Fashion to Wrap Itself In Opulence and Luxury

BY PEG ZWECKER
Chicago Daily News Service
NEW YORK — The day of riding around in a sports car is passe, designers attending the semi-annual displays of the New York Couture Group discovered. Fashion intends to travel in a limousine and surround herself with symbols of luxury.
The first clue to this change was a small one given by Helen Lee, who designs for Caroline Kennedy. Miss Lee had a chauffeur carrying a lap robe meet her and take the books from the first child model to appear on a stage portraying "Miss Hewitt's Classes." The model's classic suede coat was a new nutshell brown. "It was suggested I should call it Riviera tan," quipped Miss Lee.
One of Miss Lee's "cup capes" from the resort line might go to the White House to travel with the best-dressed five-year-old. It's a cape-collared coat costume in textured cotton, white or white with yellow. "And Caroline's only concern is whether she wants one with a front or back."
A Rolls Royce limousine driven by a liveried chauffeur right into the Pierre Ballroom, four fashion shows later, let us know we were really on the champagne circuit. And, at the same time we found that hair is taking a real trimming for fall.
The nation's top models, depicting elegant ladies, stepped from the English car to present the new look in hair fashions for fall. Michael Kazan believes in the "tiny head" and says good-bye to the bouffant. The thirtyish hair style, introduced at the Galanos collection, is flat on top and waved over the ears. Kazan achieved an elegant effect by highlighting the hair with a choice of four new shades of champagne blonde hair colorings.
Prices also elegant. Since fashion attires her shoulders in chinchilla, mink and sable, and wraps herself with new muffled scarves and other high neck lines, hair has to be short and head hugging. Also, this helps it look right with the important fall hats.
The prices of evening fashions are staggering. They also are more figure revealing than they've been in many a season.
Roxanne of Samuel Winston told us her most expensive dress was a real bargain at $3,000. A glittery and slim floor length gown of net, it is entirely jeweled with each imported rhinestone sewn on by hand.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

The debut of a baby is a happy event, indeed. Smiles reign all around. You feel relaxed and rested. Once home from the hospital, however, try to use your strength sparingly.
• Offers of help are worth their weight in "breathers" for you.
• Simple, easy-to-prepare meals, with things like frozen casseroles, are energy-savers.
• A few minutes rest before you're tired to more for you than an hour when you're plumb tuckered out.
• A change of shoes, at least once a day, is a foot 'n body perkier-upper.

Chin chat. First-time parents are sometimes a bit dismayed to find that baby has almost no chin. All babies have receding chins. It's Mother Nature's way of making it easier for baby to feed from bottle or breast and feeding itself develops baby's lower jaw into a good strong chin.
Bottle-fed or breast-fed babies soon need vitamin C for sound gums and body tissues; the development of strong bones and teeth. Gerber Strained Orange or Apple Juice provide two excellent ways to start your baby on this important vitamin. The Orange Juice has natural vitamin C. The Apple Juice is vitamin C-enriched. Both are pasteurized for baby's protection. Gerber Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

Today's babies advance at such a fast pace, they're ready for solid food almost before you can believe it. (Usually cereal at first.) Gerber Baby Cereals are specifically designed with your baby's early nutritional needs in mind. They're enriched with a special kind of iron that's easily absorbed by wee ones. Calcium and B-vitamins are also added to further your baby's nutritional well-being.

Step-Father Fights Cold War With Wife's Troublesome Son

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest the letter from the woman who married for the second time. She complained that her 21-year-old son receives the terrible treatment from his stepfather and the cold war between the two was making her physically ill. I am a step-dad who has a regular situation, but the shoe is on the other foot. My wife's son is 16. He is surly, uncooperative and spoiled beyond hope. I've tried to make friends with the boy for three years but it's useless. He hated his real father and has transferred that hatred to me.

Ann Landers

I love the boy's mother but her "baby" is building a wall between us that soon will be impossible to scale. I hope you'll print this letter for the benefit of women with children who remark: "Too often they feel guilty about depriving their youngsters of their real dad so they go all out to 'make it up to them'."

The stepdad gets the short end of the string. Sometimes he becomes fed up on being pushed around and simply checks out—Ready to Scream.

Dear Ready: The divorce rate in this country is about one out of three—so your letter will hit a broader segment of readers than you may realize. I say it the shoe fits, women, wear it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 20-year-old daughter told us yesterday that she and her boy friend were married secretly last February.

Would it be proper to send out wedding announcements? Should we have a reception? My husband feels we should submit her picture to the paper and do nothing more.

I suppose it would help you to answer more intelligently if you knew whether or not a baby is on the way. Well, I didn't ask and they didn't tell me, but I would not be surprised at anything where these two are concerned.

Please try to give me some advice based on this scanty information. It's all I have. Thank you—Plenty Upset.

Dear Plenty: The less hullabaloo the better. An announcement now would be difficult to explain.

The most sensible approach now would be to drop a note to your closest friends and the immediate family. Tell them your daughter was married several months ago and just made the fact known. The others will get the word soon enough.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Mine will probably be the least urgent and last significant letter of the year, but I have a gripe that has irritated me for a long time. I have been attending club meetings, banquets and civic affairs for 30 years. When in heaven's name will the chairman of these meetings get smart and stop rattling off the names of dozens of people who worked in the kitchen, arranged the flowers, sold the tickets and donated the center pieces? After each name, there is a pause. Of course the audience is expected to applaud. These dreadful little bursts are an imposition and an embarrassment.

What possible honor can it be to have one's name read off with 34 others? Of course, everyone wants recognition, but the same way to satisfy these hungry egos is to print their names in the monthly bulletin or in the program.

Most luncheon and banquet programs are too long and boring at best. I don't know of a single affair which could not have been made more enjoyable by dropping this insane practice. — Outspoken

Dear Outspoken: You've been reading my mind. I see little hope for eliminating the practice of name-reading however, since most people love any crumb of recognition, no matter how small, and they insist on getting it.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Flowers Need Cold Prevention

Like humans in the hot summertime, indoor flowers and potted plants can get overheated, and contract "the sniffles and colds" when exposed to chilly draughts.

To prolong the life of summer cut flowers and plants, keep them as cool as possible—but away from draughts of air from room air conditioners and window fans.

Placing flower arrangements in a cool basement at night will refresh their beauty, it adds.

Because hot dry weather speeds evaporation of water, be sure to check frequently the water level in flower containers, and potted plants to make sure they're getting adequate moisture.

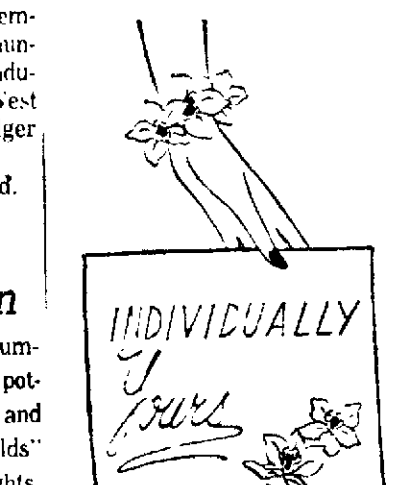

keep lots of women from fulfilling both their appearance and personal potential.

But to be an outstanding lovely, you need not—and indeed should not—be a stand-out. The call on your energies is really very small. The starting place is self-analysis. Study yourself—your looks and interests, your likes and dislikes.

In the process you will discover much you may not have known about yourself, and you surely Women sometimes seem to have been made from identical molds. The sameness of their clothes, hair, make-up and even their ideas one from the other. It is almost as though the loss of identity were a calculated effort.

Why should that be, when the height of feminine attractiveness is individuality? Is the herd instinct responsible, the fear of being different? Could laziness be the cause? Inertia certainly does

Obviously the way to do it is not by imitation, but by adaptation. If you adapt from the world of fashion and ideas those bits that express y-o-u, your individuality comes into focus.

Games Help Traveling Children

Even with the comforts of today's automobile, there are times when long stretches of driving grate on the whole family's nerves. Squabbling and roughhousing by children are dangerous—they can distract your attention from driving.

Keep cool and collected—and the children happy—with look-and-talk games. Mom or Dad at the wheel will be amused but not diverted from the job of safe driving.

Road Map Radar. This is a guessing game played with road maps. Any map showing a section of the country will do. Each person in turn picks out names within a two-inch area on the map, others guess in what state these hard-to-identify towns are situated. If they can't guess, increase the radius till a big city is named.

Everyone Participates

Plates from States. Name the state, the color of the background, and colors of the numerals. Anybody who spins a fresh state names it first, then has to go back and remember all the other ones mentioned. If you miss a state, the turn goes to the next person.

Signboard Strategy. Defers lunch for a while. Put together a complete menu from road signs. When a menu, from soup to nuts, has been assembled, every member of the family has to eat at least one dish on the bill of fare. Someone will always want to cover a few more miles in search of some special dish. Painless miles and much gaiety are added to the day's trip.

Grass Skirts, Hats, Pineapples Add Authenticity to Hawaiian Luau

Hawaii, the 50th state, was the imaginary setting for a Fourth of July party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wales, 1406 Bartell Drive. Neighbors, friends and out-of-town guests gathered to celebrate the holiday in a not-so-traditional fashion.

Decorations were made of fish nets and an outdoor "tropical" pool. Grass skirts and sarongs and a flower in the hair were typical female fashions, accompanied by flower leis. The men wore brightly-hued shirts, straw hats and Bermuda shorts.

Refreshments were served from pineapple shells and from a watermelon boat. Dinner was cooked outdoors in true luau fashion.

Above, Mrs. Bernard Stumbras, Madison; George Wales, party host, and Mr. Stumbras gave the hostess, Mrs. Wales, explicit directions on the seasoning of the dinner. The Stumbrases are former Appleton residents.

William Guyan, looking like a native islander, entertained Mrs. Douglas Bahr, Mrs. Robert Wilson, and Miss Cecile Vander Heyden at the Wednesday luau at the George Wales residence.

A Watermelon, hollowed out and filled with party punch, proved a novel refreshment bowl at the luau Wednesday. The men's straw hats helped divert the sun's heat, as well as adding to the Hawaiian air of the festivities. Above are Mrs. Vilas Burmeister, Ray

Use Flowers For Cool Look

Summer flowers of almost every description, color and variety are in abundant supply in July, to freshen summer outfits, beautify the home, brighten parties and to serve a number of other purposes.

Luxuriant green plants also are currently plentiful to give the home a refreshingly cool atmosphere during the hot summer months. Along with the temperature rise, the birth rate traditionally climbs to a high point in July. It is a big month, too, for birthday anniversaries, and for vacation trips to the seashore and mountains.

Neenah Site For Reunion

NEENAH — Mr. and Mrs. John Zeinert, route 2, were hosts Sunday for the third annual Diemmer reunion. James and John Diemmer, Stoughton, and John Diemmer, Jr., Wausau, were guests. Mr. and Mrs. John Zeinert were also present.

Federal-State Partnership Program for Reserve Backed

Nelson Says Wisconsin Has Funds To Equal Government Aid for Park Street Unit

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal to establish a National Ice Department and the Budget Bureau Scientific Reserve in Wisconsin on a federal-state partnership basis was endorsed unanimously in testimony Monday before the House National Parks subcommittee.

Secretary of Interior Nelson said the presence in Wisconsin of the best evidence of the last of four glacial advances into the continental area of the United States has national significance and merits federal grants for conservation and interpretation.

Gov. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, terming the acquisition of vanishing public recreation areas the nation's most pressing domestic problem, said the state has money available to match federal contributions and is eager to proceed.

Start New Bills. Reps. Henry S. Reuss and Les Johnson, Wisconsin Democrats who earlier introduced bills to authorize establishment of an ice field age national park, said they would introduce new bills today to follow the federal-state partnership approach suggested by the Interior Department with the sources.

The new proposal calls for 50-50 federal-state financing of the cost of acquiring an additional 12,000 acres in three or more areas along the rim of the glacial advance. The state and counties already own about 20,000 acres. The federal government would pay up to 75 per cent of the cost of providing interpretive facilities and services and 50 per cent of annual maintenance costs. The state would own and administer the lands.

Pioneering Effort. Reuss said private organizations have expressed interest in the scattered reserve linking up the scattered reserve has money available to match federal contributions and is eager to proceed.

Both Udall and Nelson described the ice age proposal as a pioneering effort in state-federal cooperation in the recreation age national park, said they would introduce new bills today to follow the federal-state partnership approach suggested by the Interior Department with the sources.

Councilmen Told Railroad's Buyer for Old Depot 'Nonexistent'

Stories of ghosts and nebulous have the effrontery to buy some creatures permeated the air of thing out from under the city's the Appleton City Council chambers Wednesday night, as Ald. George Buckley succeeded in defeating the move to buy the old Chicago and North Western passenger depot.

The railroad is playing one of the oldest confidence games in history with us," Buckley told his fellow councilmen.

"It tells us we have to buy the depot right away if we want it because there is another buyer waiting. But that buyer is so civic minded he's willing to let the city have the depot if it wants it."

"I think the railroad is dealing in ghosts. Who is this nebulous creature? I know of a city where they have ghost payrolls, but I never heard of ghost buyers like this."

The cost of park shelter houses dictated that some adjustments in the construction might be made to reduce the total costs somewhat.

Supervisors this morning but, he said, "There isn't much agreed to fork over an additional more calling we can do. It seems $4,000 to go with the $10,000 appropriated last month for construction of a shelter house at Plamann Park.

This will bring total construction costs for the new building within $2,000 of the amount turned down in 1961 for a shelter house as "excessively high." And, by the admission of some supervisors on the board floor this morning, the new building will not be as adequate as the former one would have been.

The lowest general construction bid submitted to the special city committee was $10,832 by the Stephens Construction Co. of Appleton. The lowest electrical bid of $460 by the Stephenson Construction Co. of Appleton.

Plane Guiding Rescuers to Oconto Men Stranded on Green Bay

Post-Crescent News Service
OCONTO — An 18-foot cruiser missing overnight on Green Bay with two Oconto men aboard was sighted by a search plane late this morning anchored about half a mile off shore near Peshtigo.

Aboard are Everett Augustine, owner of the craft, and Oscar Nelson, a mechanic of Cruiser, Inc., an Oconto boat manufacturing firm.

The search pilot, Robert Jubin, of Oconto, reported the sighting about 11 a. m. and was guiding craft to the scene. Jubin said both men waved to him, indicating they were all right.

The air search began at dawn today after the craft failed to return Monday night from a 15-mile run across the bay to a boat landing near Little Starvation Bay on the Door County Peninsula. It was due back about 9:30 a. m. across the bay on a test run.

Street Unit To Study Cost Of Repairs

Kimberly Board Discusses Foot Traffic at Park

KIMBERLY — The street committee of the village board was authorized by the board of public works Monday to investigate the cost of putting a new base and blacktop mat on N. Pine Street.

The committee is to investigate the cost of the work if it is done by county crews compared to the cost from a private contractor.

At one time the job was estimated at $2,500 with part of the work to be done by village crews and the remainder by a private contractor.

Discussion was held on ways to improve pedestrian traffic into Sunset Point Park as this traffic currently must use roads traveled by vehicles and board members felt this was too great a hazard. No action was taken, but the matter was held over for further study and consideration.

Police Car. The village president and administrative committee informed the board, a study would be made on naming an acting police chief in the absence of the regular chief or establishing steps in the department creating positions such as chief, assistant chief, sergeant and patrolman.

The administrative committee was authorized to meet with the auto dealer who will furnish the new squad car concerning cost of repairs to the old vehicle. The nominee, Mich. and Green Bay old squad car was found to have and intended to send up a Coast Guard plane if the cruiser was head and a cracked cylinder wall not sighted by 11:30 a. m. recently and is not in operable condition.

William Rehnke, of Oconto, who joined the search with a craft of Cruiser, Inc., scoured the entire route and reported at mid-morning there was no trace of the craft. Two other Oconto men joined the search with private boats. They old were Henry Termaat and David Damkoehler.

Dairyland Loop All-Stars Beat Landstad, 11-5

Gene Krahn Gains Win; Webster Gets Two Hits

LANDSTAD — The Dairyland League All-Stars exploded for eight runs in the second and third innings here Sunday afternoon and went on to an 11-5 victory over Landstad, the first-round champions.

Don Webster, of Garson, was the only member of the dream team's lineup to gather more than one hit. He banged a single and double.

The All-Stars started the scoring with three runs in the second. Marv Pues opened with a single and Allen Mitchell followed with a walk before Webster pounded both home with his double.

The final run of the inning came when Webster moved to third on a ground-out and came home on Gene Krahn's sacrifice fly. Five runs scored in the next frame.

Allows 5 Hits

Dan Habighorst was the losing hurler. He gave up five hits and five runs. Bob Radtke took the mound for an inning and allowed two hits and the same number of runs before Each Richter took over.

Richter gave up three hits over the last six innings. He fanned seven but was tagged for two home runs. Garson's Bill Danforth rocked one out in the seventh, and Hofa Park's Del Dorn belted a bases-empty homer in the eighth.

Gene Krahn, of Seymour, went the first three innings for the All-Stars. He was charged with one unearned run and one hit in gaining the mound verdict.

Howard Vanden Elzen, of Hofa Park, went the next three frames and gave up three hits, no runs and fanned seven.

Jerry Rohm, of Black Creek, took over in the seventh but could only retire one batter. Bonduel's Leon Drage finished up, allowing just two hits.

Majors Will Consider Cut in 1963 Schedule

Expect Disagreement On Number of 'Star' Games in Future

WASHINGTON (AP)—The baseball players' request for a reduced schedule in 1963 will be considered by the two major leagues, but there may be a serious disagreement about playing two All-Star games after 1962.

The American League is expected to give serious consideration to the players' suggestion to pare the schedule from 162 games to 153.

National League owners soon will examine drafts of two proposed schedules. One will call for 153 games, or 17 with each other team in the league, and the other will call for the 162 games played this season.

Neither league has a meeting scheduled until December but the National, at least, probably will have a special summer session in August.

The American League took a firm stand against a second All-Star game last December when it reluctantly approved the two games for 1962. It said no request for a renewal would be considered in the future. Apparently there has been no change in that stand.

The National League has an open mind on the subject and might go along with the players' requests. However, both leagues must agree.

For Pension Fund

The majors have played two All-Star games for the player pension fund since 1959.

In any event, the players' main consideration at Monday's meeting was some relief from the 162-game schedule.

"We are recommending that the leagues do whatever is feasible in reducing the number of games whether it be 153, 154 or 156," said Judge Robert Cannon, legal counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Judge Cannon said the recommendation would be passed on to Commissioner Ford Frick, who will forward it to the separate leagues.

"The players would like a change in travel conditions so that arrival times would be more reasonable and not 3, 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning," said Judge Cannon. "They also oppose day-night doubleheaders."

Judge Cannon said the players voted unanimously in favor of the two All-Star games in 1963 to Jack Coenen and Jerry Helding help support their pension fund. It also was suggested that Hall of Fame members be added to those covered by the pension.

"It was not a rebellious session," said Frank Scott, director of the association. "The players are satisfied that if the matter is in the hands of Commissioner Frick, it is in good hands."

KAUKAUNA — The All-Stars exploded for five runs in the top of the 11th inning to take a 14-9 win over the Eagles, first half champs in the City Softball League, Sunday night.

Four Tied for Medal Lead In U. S. Public Links Meet

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A Hawaiian golf invasion of the mainland was in full swing today as a brace of Honolulu veterans held quarter-shares of the medal lead in the 37th U.S. Public Links Championship.

El Arakawa and Hung Ahn fired two-over-par 73s over Sheraton Park's 6,697 testing yards in 1954.

They were joined at the halfway mark on the 36-hole qualifier by Lulu Sabotin, and ex-amateur from Warren, Ohio, and youthful George Archer of San Francisco.

After today's round, the 150-hole field will be trimmed to the low 65 for match play, starting on Monday.

Arakawa, 56, is in his fourth military tour. He won't 190th and a hit by Monday's start because that sort most suits sports.

Sugar Ray Shows Age In Loss to Phil Moyer

Joe Louis Has Idea Of Return Bout; Davey Moore Wins

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Matchmaker Joe Louis today toyed with the idea of a return fight between loser Sugar Ray Robinson and his most recent conqueror, Phil Moyer—a bit of news not calculated to titillate the fancy of untold thousands who failed to avail themselves the opportunity to see the original.

Some 6,000 people, or about 10,000 fewer than the Sports Arena holds, saw the aggressive, plodding 24-year-old Moyer win a 10-round decision Monday night. The spectators also saw world featherweight champion Davey Moore dispose of Mexico's Mario Diaz in a crisp two rounds of their scheduled 10-round non-title bout. One punch did it—a right to the jaw.

Little Davey, from Columbus, Ohio, was quite undisturbed that his match was billed second to the Robinson-Moyer attraction. Moore's manager, the erudite Willie Ketchum, explained: "We ain't bothered, just so we get to the box office ahead of Robinson."

Guaranteed $7,500. Both Robinson and Moore were guaranteed $7,500 apiece, a sum roughly equal to what Robinson used to pay his hair-dresser.

The real surprise, after watching the once-talented Sugar in a sad display of rust and age, was that the decision was split. Referee Jimmy Wilson and one judge gave it to Moyer without much question. The other judge, John Thomas, thought Robinson won. The crowd boomed his reckoning.

If Robinson had any chance of winning in the last rounds, he lost it in the ninth when Moyer belted him with a left hook to the jaw, drove him into the ropes and almost finished him.

"But he got away," said Phil. "I thought I had him but he was too smart."

Robinson took the defeat without rancor. He joked about his exorbitant income tax debt to Uncle Sam, said he has no notion of quitting the ring and hopes to win his next match, with Terry Downes in England in September.

Stagg's Birthday Will Commemorate Century Of Living and Teaching 4-3 Triumph

Coaching Career Spanned 70 Years With Grid Teams

BY JACK STEVENSON

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—Football's incredible Amos Alonzo Stagg reaches his 100th birthday on Aug. 16, commemorating a century of living and teaching by the moral principles to which he was dedicated.

"I felt specially called to preach," he says, "but I decided to do it on the athletic fields."

With that decision in 1880 began a coaching career spanning 70 years with innovations and contributions to be remembered as long as the game is played.

His eyes are dim, his hands tremble, he moves and speaks slowly as the body that made him a 160-pound athletic star yields grudgingly to the demands of time.

At Yale, where he was a member of the first All-America football team ever selected, Stagg studied for the ministry and pitched baseball—the best college hurler of the era.

Yale won five league championships during Stagg's pitching career and he turned down six offers from major league clubs.

"I gave up professional baseball on principle," he explains to the day. "There may have been nothing wrong about it, but that didn't make it right for me."

There was a bar in every pro pack those days which didn't fit Stagg's principles of living.

Teach Others

He also felt he should teach others rather than exploit his own athletic talents.

Throughout the years Stagg is championed amateur sport, terming it "one of the opportunities which come to a young man, and which come to a young man, and which come to a young man."

Stagg and his beloved wife, Stella, have three children, a daughter, Ruth, and two sons, Amos Alonzo Jr., and Paul, both of whom coached football. Since 1933 after coaching 41 years and reaching the mandatory retirement age of 70, Stagg and his wife have lived in a modest cottage in Stockton.

Money never played an important part in his life, although he will know its value. He recalls a time at prep school when, from necessity, "I made my luncheon and supper on one pound of soda crackers that cost me five cents. Similarly that was my diet for my first two meals at Yale."

His salary as coach and athletic director at the University of Chicago never exceeded $3,500 a year, yet he once turned down an offer of $500 for a single speech because it would mean missing a day of practice with his team.

Never Drank

Stagg never drank, smoked or even ate the occasion he might call a "social" player a "drunk." But he did not even go to the races.

He was a member of the University of Chicago players' union, a union which had no drinking, smoking, or gambling.

He was a member of the National Football League, and he was a member of the National Football League, and he was a member of the National Football League.

Good Trainer

Asked to say what he learned from his coaching career, Stagg said: "I learned that a good coach must be a good teacher. He must be able to teach the players the game, and he must be able to produce the best players of the game."

Foxes Stave Off Rally for 4-3 Triumph caught a fast ball and drilled it to right for a sacrifice fly.

With runners on first and third, manager Cal Ripken hailed Colpaert from the bullpen, and Burlington countered with Reardon as a pinch-hitter. Colpaert promptly whizzed three strikes by Reardon to end the game.

The two Foxes' runs in the third scored when Bob Lewandowski was hit by a pitch and took second on a passed ball. Bean bunted a hard one down the first base line for a hit and the second baseman fired the ball into left field trying to get Lewandowski at third and Bob scored. Bean went to second on the play and crossed the plate when Bob Litchfield singled.

Burlington made it 2-1 in the fifth when Joe Reddick singled, took second on a sacrifice and scored on a double by Moe Rilipo.

Lead Increased

Markowski's blast made it 3-1 in the seventh and the winning rally scored in the eighth when Del Southern was safe on a fielder's choice and scored on Ripken's long double to left center.

Larry Gable, the loser, deserved a better fate. He walked only three batters and fanned 13 while allowing six hits. He managed to strike out every man in the Foxes' lineup at least once, except Colpaert who did not get a chance to bat.

Bean had eight strikeouts, but his control was shaky and he issued 11 free passes.

The defensive line will be in the good and big hands of Bill Quinlin, Willie Wood, Hank Jordan and Dave Hanner. The line-backers are such as Dan Curries, Bill Forester, Tom Bettis and Nitschke.

The defensive secondary will include Jesse Whittenburg, John Samank, Willie Wood and Herb Adley. Missing will be veteran Em Tunnel, one of the league's great defensive backs who called it quits after 14 seasons.

Barry Starr will return to his quarterback duties and his targets at end will include Max McGee and Ron Kramer, who had training with the All-Stars and therefore will not join the Packers until after the August game in the wings.

Horning, Dowler and Nitschke played only part-time after they were called to military service midway in the 1961 season. Just when they will be released has not been announced, but chances are thin that they will be present for first drills. Elijah Pitts and Adley both are in six-month military programs and won't be available until late in July.

Three of the rookies will be Joe and Ron Kramer, who had training with the All-Stars and therefore will not join the Packers until after the August game in the wings.

Fisherman Says 5-Foot Sturgeon Jumped Into Boat

ALGONAC, Mich. (AP)—Oscar Blalock of Detroit said he was fishing in the St. Clair River Monday when a five-foot sturgeon jumped into his 12-foot boat.

Blalock scrambled toward the bow and was about to jump overboard when a nearby fisherman, John Starr of Royal Oak, yelled at him to stay in the boat.

"I rowed there in a puff," said Starr. "When I got alongside I managed to stick an oar into the sturgeon's gills and push the big fish under the middle seat of the boat."

"By this time other boats had gathered around, but nobody would get into Blalock's boat as long as the sturgeon was there thrashing his tail."

Starr and another boater sandwiched Blalock's boat between them, brought it to shore and beached it.

The 40-pound sturgeon, now in deep freeze, will be mounted with the legend—"the only fish that was never caught."

Palmer Fires 67, Certain Of Qualifying

Lafreche, Pa. powerhouse was unhappy about his game and also about his stomach. Something wasn't quite right about his digestion and he also had a complaint about his shoulder muscle. Those who know Palmer were inclined to scoff a bit.

Snead Hits 69

"Look out for him when he says he isn't feeling well," said Dai Rees, British Ryder Cup captain. Weatherbeaten Sam Snead and 1961 U.S. Open Champion Gene Littler lay back in the most comfortable of positions. Snead at 50 hasn't any right to aspire to this one. But all he did was crack around lengthened Troon in 69, with three birdies on the first four holes. And Littler coasted around in 71.

So did Gary Player, the mite-sized South African who combines a gentle gaze with a fierce talent for collecting all the money.

Nagle was the most content of all though he was too modest to suggest he would repeat his 1960 triumph over Palmer, by one shot at St. Andrews. All he would say about his 65 was:

"It takes some of the strain off tomorrow."

Stocks Earning More Than Ever

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Would you like to know where you can earn between five and six per cent on an investment now?

The answer is in such higher grade stocks as Allied Chemical, Atlantic Richfield, Ford, General Motors, International Harvester, Libbey Owens-Ford, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Pacific and Western Union. These are just samples selected because all are given a good quality "A" excellent rating by Wall Street's top rating service and all have world famous names.

Or would you like to know where you can earn between six and seven per cent on new investment?

Even Higher The answer to this in such higher grade stocks as Allied Stores, Anaconda, Atchafalaya, Borden, Santa Fe, Continental Baking, General Portland, Southern Railway, Stewart Warner and Worthington. Again these are just samples of companies with well known names and a good quality rating.

Or perhaps you are curious to know what stocks with household names might give you between seven and eight per cent or more a year?

The stocks of several of our nation's great steel corporations—including the biggest of them all—will give you these results.

More Conservative? Or maybe you're more conservative and would like to know where you could earn only between four and five per cent a year?

In such stocks as American Smelting, Bendix, Continental Can, Johns-Manville, Lone Star Gas, Munsingwear, Pacific Lighting, you can expect such returns.

As a result of the crack in stock prices in recent months, yields on stocks—in simple language—the annual rate of return you can earn on a stock based on the dividend the stock pays and the price you pay for the shares—have soared. The list from which the above illustrations were chosen prepared by J. Walter Leason of the New York Stock Exchange firm of Gregory & Sons dramatically underlines this fact.

50 Per Cent Above Some good quality stocks, as Leason points out, are 50 per cent above their yield levels of a few months ago. As one example of a world famous name, Ford Motor stock returned a bit over 3 per cent a year at its 1962 high price. It now returns 5 per cent a year.

Many good quality stocks now offer annual returns well above what you could get in any savings bank or savings association. This was not true earlier this year—when banks the nation over raised the interest rate they pay on long term deposits to 4 per cent and savings institutions in turn hiked their rates to 4 1/4, 4 1/2 and even above.

Similarly, the relationship between what you can earn on a good-quality stock now and what you can earn on a good quality bond is closer than it has been in a long time. The break in stock prices is bringing back normal, more traditional stock-bond spreads.

Not Investment Advice None of this is to be interpreted as investment advice and let there be no misunderstanding on this score.

In the first place, one reason steel stocks have slumped so much is that astute observers suspect that at the next annual meetings of some leaders, dividend rates may be cut—in which case today's high annual yields would overnight become lower yields.

In the second place, the stock market has had a tremendous shock: millions of stockholders have been dreadfully disillusioned and buying stocks is hardly as popular among average families now as it was a while back.

Need Administration Help In the third place, unless and until there is more than talk from the administration about giving our sluggish business advance a new stimulant, the economy's background will continue to force skepticism about the ability of corporations to maintain their earnings. While dividends paid by companies listed on the NYSE hit a huge $10.4 billion last year, are still expected to be higher in 1962, this situation could change if the economic picture doesn't brighten.

In the fourth place, I've never made any pretensions to being a stock market forecaster and I'm not starting now. Nevertheless, the fact is that when the Dow Jones industrial average was more than 130 points higher than it is today, optimism was widespread. Today, when it is at a much saner level, pessimism is dominant. In Leason's words: "This may be human nature, but it is certainly also illogical."

The fact is too that ratios and relationships are far more reasonable. Stock yields are far more attractive and a lot of hot air has been blown out of individual stocks by the hurricane of May, June.

Review Board Adjourns Until Rolls Finished

Appleton's board of review met Monday, then adjourned until 10 a.m. Aug. 27, by when Assessor John Pierre hopes to have the assessment rolls completed.

Pierre said this morning that if he doesn't have the rolls completed then he will ask the board to adjourn for another week. The board then would start hearings on Sept. 3.

The assessor has reported he is behind schedule because of the state's revised tax laws which require new personal property assessment forms. A sample of the forms arrived late, he said.

When the board begins hearings it will be in session for one week from 10 a.m. to noon and 3 to 5 p.m.

Property owners who believe their assessments are too high may fill out a form at the city clerk's office. They will be given a time when they can appear before the board.

Ald. R. P. Groh was elected chairman this morning. Ald. Kenneth Loos will be vice chairman. Other members are Ald. Al Stoebauer, William Ertl, Donald Mueller and Mrs. Dorothy Stullings.
